Elon Musk, the new owner of Twitter, has defended laying off around half of the online platform's workforce, saying he had "no choice".

50% of Twitter employees were fired on Friday, according to Yoel Roth head of safety and integrity at the social media giant.

In a Tweet, Musk said "regarding Twitter's reduction in force, unfortunately there is no choice when the company is losing over $4M/day."

Musk, the world's richest man, maintained that "Twitter's strong commitment to content moderation remains absolutely unchanged."

On Friday, Twitter Inc temporarily closed its offices after telling employees they will be informed by email later in the day whether they are being laid off.

Coding is mostly about the way you think and approach a problem and very little about knowing how to follow a syntax.

Remembering syntaxes are a muscle memory, which you will get to learn over time with practice. So whenever someone asks me, how to build apps? How do I get started with coding?

Help! My straightforward answer to this is, think of a problem that is close and personal to you and build an app that would fix it? It doesn't matter if the app exists today in the market or not. Go about building the app, find the best tech stack to learn to build that application.
